Editorial Review

About the Author

Carillet has a degree in translation and in international relations. She is now a full-time author.

Paul Clammer works for an adventure-travel company leading tours to far-flung countries, and also runs a Web site dedicated to independent travel in Kabul. In 2002, he crossed Sudan overland as part of a trip following the Nile from its source in Ethiopia to the sea.

Schulte-Peevers is a Los Angeles-based writer, editor and translator who owes her love of languages and travel to her mother, who began lugging her off to foreign lands when she was just a toddler. She got her high-school education in Germany, then left for London and stints as an au-pair, market researcher and foreign language correspondent. In the mid-80s, she swapped England for Southern California and the hallowed halls of UCLA. She hit the job market armed with a degree in English literature and chartered a course in travel journalism.

Dominique De-Light lived in Trinidad for three years. She is a freelance writer and has work published in "Caribbean Beat" and "Firsthand: An Anthology of New Writing", and has contributed to several Rough Guides. Polly Thomas first visited the Caribbean as a teenager. As well as co-authoring this book, she is the author of the Rough Guide to Jamaica.

Karla Zimmerman is a travel writer for newspapers, books, magazines, and websites, and has contributed to National Geographic Traveler, The Chicago Tribune, and Time Out Chicago, among many others. She has covered destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, North America, and the South. A life-long Midwesterner, Karla has been based in Chicago for the past nineteen years.
