One of the best debut novels I've read. Philomela Callan # 2 Goodreads reviewer and book blogger.

The writing is superb. Kept me on the edge of my seat. Sue Ward # 3 Goodreads reviewer and book blogger.

This book will grab you from the start and have you at the edge of your seat by the end. I could not tap to the next page on my kindle quickly enough. Sarah Hardy, Goodreads reviewer and book blogger.

A powerful debut which deals with serious and topical issues. Very dark and intense, this story moves at a galloping pace, keeping you on tenterhooks throughout. The writing is fab, and the author does a brilliant job of getting into the characters' heads from the abominable Dr. Galbraith, to his abused wife and all of his victims. Intense and gripping. A hard hitting, eye opener of a book. A must read. Renita D'Silva, best selling author.

From the Author

White is the coldest colour is entirely fictional, but draws on my experiences as a police officer, child protection social worker, manager and trainer. During my career I was faced with case after case that left me incredulous as to the harm sexual predators chose to inflict on their victims. The book reflects that reality.

The story is set in 1992, a more naïve time when many found it extremely difficult to believe that a significant number of adults posed a serious risk to children.

The book includes content that some readers may find upsetting from the start.

It is dedicated to survivors everywhere.
