Editorial Review

About the Author

Luke was born and raised on a cattle property in New South Wales, Australia. After years of struggling as a cattleman Luke came to the conclusion there would be no future in making a decent living from cattle breeding or farming in general. He had no idea after he sold the cattle property, and started to look for a financial advisor that he would end writing a book alerting people to what he believes is the best way to prepare and prosper in this existing financial debt crisis that precedes the great depression. He is totally committed and passionate about getting this information out to as many people as will listen. Once you understand this thinking you can prepare and succeed not only in the long slow winter deflationary season but in all seasons of our economy.
